

Robotic Applications in Manufacturing Fuelling India's Growth

Dr. Neeraj Sinha, Naman Agarwal & Manurag Khullar

Robotics in Flexible Manufacturing

Technologies like big data analytics, augmented reality, 5G communications, and artificial intelligence are advancing individually. When these technologies combine and converge, they achieve exponential technological growth, known as the 'law of accelerating returns.' Today, we are at a tipping point where such technologies, that have been undergoing advancement for the past few decades, have started to produce breakthrough innovations and paradigm shifts. One such paradigm shift is being witnessed in the manufacturing industry, where labour-intensive manufacturing is shifting to robot-intensive manufacturing.

As per the Boston Consulting Group report, the global robotics industry grew at a CAGR (compound annual growth rate) of 17% over 2020-23 and is expected to continue growing at 22-31% CAGR over 2023-30. This is due to the rising demand for industrial robots in the manufacturing industry. With the growing cost-effectiveness and efficiency of robots, robotics is seen as a game changer in achieving economies of scale and quick cost reduction. Manufacturing firms in both developed and emerging economies have been automating their production lines to boost productivity and competitiveness. Eventually, the rise of robots, over the past decade, enabled by convergences in technologies like Machine Learning (ML), energy storage systems, the Internet of Things (IoT), additive engineering, etc., is fast changing the face of global manufacturing.

Problem of Ageing Population and the Rise of Robotics

This rise in industrial robots in the manufacturing industry started as many developed countries and the global manufacturing hub, China, started recognising the rampant labour shortages due to the ageing population and declining fertility rate with the median age in the United States, Japan, China and South

Korea being 38.5 years, 48.6 years, 38.4 years, and 43.2 years, respectively. With a rapidly ageing population, countries are increasingly exploring ways in which older populations can continue contributing to the economy. This led to increased Research & Development in robotics, especially, for their industrial applications. Robotics is increasingly evolving to enhance worker safety and perform more tedious tasks such as sorting, lifting weights, etc., rendering the human workforce for more intellectual tasks. In this regard, robots are not necessarily trying to replace the human force but augment their work. For example, 'cobots' or collaborative robots, such as robotic arms, work along with the human workforce and perform tasks such as painting, welding, sorting, quality control, and packaging, among others while being operated by humans. This makes them useful, especially, in handling harmful materials, which can cause serious health hazards for workers. We are already Fortunately, there are some research-based memory techniques that you can use to improve your ability to recall information quickly and accurately during exams. Here is a list of the 10 best research-based memory techniques which will help you in your preparations for competitive exams:

Mnemonic Devices

One of the best memory techniques that you can use to remember information for a competitive exam is to use mnemonic devices. These are acronyms, rhymes, and stories that will help you to remember the facts quickly and easily. For example, if you need to remember the planets in order from the sun to the furthest, you can use the mnemonic device "My Very Educated Mother Just Served Us Noodles" (Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune).

Some of the popular mnemonics for the General Studies paper are:

SFURTI - Energising Traditional Industries

Sameera Saurabh

SFURTI (Scheme of Fund for Regeneration of Traditional Industries) aims to give a new lease of life to traditional industries by organizing small units and artisans into clusters, thereby, increasing their production, making them competitive and profitable by enhancing marketability of products and providing sustainable employment. Emphasis has been laid on promoting cluster activities related to traditional products such as handloom, handicraft, khadi, coir, bamboo, honey, agro-processing, etc. SFURTI that was initially launched in 2005-06, was revamped in 2014 in its present form to cover diverse sectors of traditional industries across the country.

Main Objective

The basic aim of the scheme is to organize traditional industries and artisans into clusters and make them competitive, provide sustained employment and enhance marketability of products. The end is to support establishment of a collective manufacturing enterprise of artisans, allowing the artisans to produce value-added products suitable for present day markets and consumers, thereby increasing their share of the value from the enhanced product.

Financial Assistance

Financial assistance of Rs. 2.5 crore is given to regular clusters (comprising up to 500 artisans) and Rs. 5 crore Major Clusters (more than 500 artisans). Government contribution to the financial assistance varies between 90% and 95%, while the SPV (Special Purpose Vehicle) of the clusters contributes 10% - 5% (in NE, J&K and Hill States).

Key Interventions

The support under SFURTI includes hard interventions, soft interventions and thematic interventions. The hard interventions for creating physical infrastructure include setting up of a factory/Common Facility Centre (CFC), procurement of new machines, setting up of design house, procurement of raw materials, etc. Under soft intervention, the artisans are supported with 100% grant for training, awareness building, exposure visits, etc. Under thematic intervention, support is given to several clusters in the same sector for brand building, marketing and e-commerce, research and development initiatives, etc.

Eligibility

Exiting artisans from traditional clusters are eligible to form a cluster. Non-Government Organizations (NGOs), institutions of the Central and State Governments and Semi-Government institutions, field functionaries of State and Central Government, Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs), and similar agencies, with suitable expertise are eligible to undertake cluster development under SFURTI.

Implementation

The Implementing Agencies (IAs), which comprise the NGOs, institutions of Central and State Governments having experience of working at the grass root level with artisans, bring together the artisans and constitute them into a Special Purpose Vehicle (SPV) to manage the enterprise in long term. IAs are responsible for implementation of cluster projects, including capacity building and handholding of artisans. Besides, there are Nodal Agencies (NAs) which are national level institutions with sectoral expertise and work as interface between clusters (IAs, SPV and artisans) and the Ministry of Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSME) to support and supervise cluster implementation. The NAs also engage Technical Agencies (TAs) which are reputed technical institutions with sectoral experience.

Under SFURTI, a cluster is said to be functional only if it accomplishes the execution of the following tasks:

- Completion of building construction
- Installation of all machinery required for CFC
- Electrification of all machineries and CFC building
- Trial runs for commercial production
- Tie-ups for marketing linkages
- All clearances and permissions in place
- Initiation of commercial production and sales

The process of functionalisation of cluster involves a large number of artisans, who have to be mobilised and organised. Since clusters comprise 300-1000 artisans, it takes considerable time and effort to educate the artisans and bring synergy among this large group. Only after such synergy has been developed, the artisans are able to work towards a common goal.

Achievements

A total of 498 clusters have been approved under SFURTI since 2015-16. This entails a commitment of Rs. 1292.94 crores directly benefitting 2.94 lakh traditional artisans. These clusters are spread across the length and breadth of the country, covering 311 districts, including 89 aspirational districts. 261 of the 498 clusters approved under SFURTI have so far become functional, implying that building and machinery installation have been completed and production and marketing have commenced.

The clusters cover a wide range of sectors and their artisans. Handicrafts, bamboo, textile, coir, honey, agri-business, khadi, etc. are covered across all parts of the country. Women, Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, Other Backward Classes, and Minorities form the majority of SFURTI beneficiaries in most clusters.

Sectoral Coverage of SFURTI Clusters

Sector	Agri-Business	Bamboo	Coir	Handi-craft	Honey	Khadi	Textile	Total
Functional	48	20	27	71	5	3	87	261
Under Implementation	85	19	13	62	12	1	45	237
Total	133	39	40	133	17	4	132	498

Recent Initiatives:

- Previously, the implementation period for a SFURTI cluster was 3 years. To ensure benefits of the interventions under the scheme are available to the artisans early, the timelines for setting up regular and major clusters have been reduced to 12 and 18 months respectively. To ensure the same, the government has taken steps such as allowing artisans to deposit their contribution in four instalments, guidance to IAs for tendering of machines and building construction, regular review meetings on progress of the clusters, etc.
- Apart from the procedural upgradations, clusters have been encouraged to adopt industry best practices in order to make every cluster a state-of-art Model Cluster.
 - The Ministry has encouraged digitization under which the clusters are continuously asked to digitize their production lines, manufacturing and administrative processes in order to bring in more transparency and efficiency.
 - Clusters are encouraged to align their machineries in consultation with lean system experts in order to be more cost effective and efficient
 - Green technology such as solar power, waste minimization/utilization, rain water harvesting, etc. are being promoted and adopted at every cluster.
 - The Ministry is also encouraging paintings of the art and craft, the products and the culture of the cluster to be depicted on outside walls of the Common Facility Centers (CFCs) so as to attract tourists and develop the CFCs as tourist destinations
 - Greenery and plantation around the cluster for beautification is being promoted in all SFURTI clusters
 - Special focus is being given on adoption of blockchain technology, particularly in food processing and honey clusters which increase the value of the produce due to authentic identification of its source.
 - Besides, nodal agencies are also being encouraged to develop apps to monitor the income of the artisans in the clusters.
- All clusters are being connected to specialised institutions for design development so that new products are designed as per the market demand.
- All clusters are encouraged to be connected to e-commerce portals, including dedicated portals designed by some nodal agencies to promote the digital publicity and sale of products.
- Tie ups with various eminent institutions are being worked upon to ensure support on new technologies to the clusters in various sectors.
- During the COVID-19 pandemic, Ministry extended financial assistance to the SFURTI artisans with working capital loan for meeting their day-to-day operational expenses. This initiative not only assisted the artisans with immediate cash in hand during critical COVID-19 crisis, but also empowered them to continue their production and sustain their livelihoods.
- In order to mitigate the challenges created by COVID-19 induced lockdowns, restriction on physical sale and the dip in market demand, the clusters have been assisted with participation in virtual exhibitions, online buyer-seller meets, production of auxiliary medical products like masks, sanitizers, etc.
- Year wise sanction and functionalisation of clusters is mentioned in the table below:

Financial Year	No. of Clusters Approved	No. of Clusters Functional
2015-16	29	Nil
2016-17	38	2
2017-18	2	16
2018-19	64	12
2019-20	157	19
2020-21	107	96
2021-22	101	106
2022-23	-	10
Total	498	261

A national level exhibition of traditional products from SFURTI clusters was organised for the first time commemorating Azadi ka Amrit Mahotsav from 1st to 15th October, 2022 at Dilli Haat, New Delhi. During the SFURTI Mela, 100 artisans from 50 SFURTI clusters covering 28 States exhibited their traditional products of handloom, handicrafts, khadi, coir, agro-processing. These included clusters such as- Sozni Embroidery cluster of Jammu and Kashmir, Cane and Bamboo cluster of Meghalaya, Channapatna Toy Cluster of Karnataka, Natural Dye Cluster of Rajasthan, Madhubani painting Cluster of Bihar, Kolhapuri Traditional Jewellery cluster of Maharashtra, Coir Cluster of Kerala, Carpet and Durrie Cluster of Uttar Pradesh, Millet Cluster of Odisha, Eri Silk Khadi Cluster of Arunachal Pradesh among others. The purpose of this Mela was to promote the traditional products from across the country among the citizens, during the festive times. Besides, this mela will also open new avenues for the artisans for marketing and sales of these cluster products. Live demonstration of manufacturing processes of traditional products was also been organized in the theme pavilion of this Mela.

India Walks the Green Talk

Energy Conservation (Amendment) Bill, 2022

Energy transition is defined as "a change in the primary form of energy consumption of a given society". In India, the framework for energy transition is governed by the country's commitment under the Nationally Determined Contributions (NDCs) submitted to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC). In this context, the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change (MOEF&CC) has submitted to the UNFCCC secretariat a framework document "India's Long-Term Low-Carbon Development Strategy" which has the elements of Long-Term Low-Emissions Development Strategies including rational utilization of fossil fuel resources, with due regard to energy security, expanding renewables & strengthening the grid, etc.

With an objective to support the energy transition, the Energy Conservation (Amendment) Bill, 2022 has been passed by the Rajya Sabha in the current session of the Parliament. The Bill was previously passed by the Lok Sabha in August 2022.

What Necessitated the Amendment?

The Energy Conservation (Amendment) Bill, 2022 amends the Energy Conservation Act, 2001, which was enacted to provide for the efficient use of energy and its conservation. The 2001 Act provides for establishment and incorporation of the Bureau of Energy Efficiency (BEE) and confers certain powers upon the Central Government, the State Government and the BEE to enforce measures for efficient use of energy and its conservation. The Energy Conservation Act, 2001 was amended in the year 2010 to address various new factors which emerged with the development of the energy market over a period of time and to provide for more efficient and effective use of energy.

With the passage of time, and in the context of energy transition with special focus on promotion of new and renewable energy and National Green Hydrogen Mission, a need was felt to further amend the Act. The Energy Conservation (Amendment) Bill, 2022 will facilitate the achievement of 'Panchamrit' - as five nectar elements presented by India in COP-26 (Conference of Parties - 26) in Glasgow in 2021.

The Bill is said to promote renewable energy and the development of the domestic Carbon market to combat climate change. To achieve the same, new concepts such as Carbon trading and mandatory use of non-fossil sources have been introduced. These will help ensure faster decarbonization of Indian economy and help in achieving Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) in line with the Paris Agreement and various other actions related to climate change. To encourage investments in clean energy and energy efficiency areas by the private sector, a legal framework for a Carbon market with the objective of incentivizing actions for emission-reduction was also deemed necessary.

OBJECTIVE

- To enhance the use of Renewable Energy

ENABLING PROVISIONS IN THE BILL

- To develop a Carbon Market
- Defining minimum share of Renewable Energy by industrial units or any establishment
- Incentivising efforts on using Clean Energy Sources by means of Carbon Saving Certificate
- Inclusion of Energy Consumption Standards for vehicles and vessels

EN EXPLAINS

Another need that was felt in India's transition to climate action was to have legal provisions to prescribe minimum consumption of non-fossil energy sources as energy or feedstock by the designated consumers. Such provisions can help in reduction of fossil fuel-based energy consumption and resultant Carbon emissions to the atmosphere.

What is the New Bill About?

The Energy Conservation (Amendment) Bill, 2022 promotes energy efficiency and conservation. The Bill shall:

- mandate use of non-fossil sources, including Green Hydrogen, Green Ammonia, Biomass and Ethanol for energy and feedstock;
- establish Carbon Markets;
- bring large residential buildings within the fold of Energy Conservation regime;
- enhance the scope of Energy Conservation Building Code;
- amend penalty provisions;
- increase members in the Governing Council of Bureau of Energy Efficiency; and
- empower the State Electricity Regulatory Commissions to make regulations for smooth discharge.

a) Carbon Credit Trading Scheme

'Carbon Credit' refers to a tradeable permit allowing the holder to emit a specified amount of carbon dioxide or other greenhouse gasses, such as methane and nitrous oxide. A Carbon Credit can be earned by reducing emissions for a given activity or creating sinks for carbon absorption. Carbon credits may be purchased by an entity that emits above its specified amount.

The Carbon Credit Trading Scheme, included in the new Bill, is aimed at reducing greenhouse gas emissions, and hence addressing climate change. The Central Government or any authorized agency may issue Carbon Credit certificates to entities registered and compliant with the scheme. The entities will be entitled to trade the certificates.

b) Usage of Non-fossil Sources of Energy

The Energy Conservation (Amendment) Bill, 2022 empowers the Central Government to specify energy consumption standards. The Bill adds that the Government may require 'designated consumers' to meet a minimum share of energy consumption from non-fossil sources. Different consumption thresholds may be specified for different non-fossil sources and consumer categories. 'Designated consumers' include industries such as mining, steel, cement, textile, chemicals, and petrochemicals; transport sector, including Railways; and commercial buildings, as specified in the Schedule.

Failure to meet this obligation will be punishable with a penalty of up to Rs 10 lakhs. It will also attract an additional penalty of up to twice the price of oil equivalent to energy consumed above the prescribed norm.

c) Green Buildings

The 2001 Act empowers the Central Government to specify Energy Conservation Code for buildings, which prescribes energy consumption standards in terms of area. The current Energy Conservation Building Code (ECBC) sets minimum energy standards for commercial buildings having a connected load of 100kW or contract demand of 120 KVA and above. The Bill amends this to provide for an 'Energy Conservation and Sustainable Building Code'. ECBC essentially means "the norms and standards of energy consumption expressed in terms of per square metre of the area wherein energy is used and includes the location of the building".

The Energy Conservation and Sustainable Building Code will provide norms for energy efficiency and conservation, the use of renewable energy, and other requirements for green buildings. A 'green building' means the one which ensures optimum utilization of natural resources and generates less waste as compared to a conventional building. Green buildings are expected to reduce energy and water consumption and also eliminate waste through recycling and reuse. The new code will also apply to the office and residential buildings, in addition to the commercial buildings. The Bill empowers the State Governments to lower the load thresholds.

d) Standards for Vehicles & Vessels

Under the 2001 Act, the energy consumption standards may be specified for equipment and appliances which consume, generate, transmit, or supply energy. The Energy Conservation (Amendment) Bill, 2022 expands the scope to include vehicles (as defined under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988) and vessels (includes ships and boats). The failure to comply with standards will be punishable with a penalty of up to Rs. 10 lakhs. Non-compliance, in the case of vessels, will attract an additional penalty of up to twice the price of oil equivalent to energy consumed above the prescribed norm. Vehicle manufacturers in violation of fuel consumption norms will be liable to pay a penalty of up to Rs 50,000 per unit of vehicles sold.

Robotic Applications in Manufacturing ...

witnessing this trend on a scale in emerging industries such as lithium batteries, drones and electric vehicle manufacturing. Industrial robots, therefore, are being adopted in both developed economies and emerging economies where the human workforce is abundant.

Humans have been the primary cause of quality errors in performing monotonous and repetitive tasks for years. These errors can have varied adverse consequences, from directly damaging the product line to lowering efficiency. On the contrary, industrial robots can do repetitive tasks with greater precision and minimal errors, such as robotic bolt tightening automation can fasten screws consistently with precise torque, which can be an onerous task otherwise. Further, in economies with adequate human workforce, many industries face challenges in retaining the workforce, especially when work is too specialised and specific to the industry. This adds to the burden of recruiting a new human workforce and training them with that technical skill, leading to significant delays in the production pipelines. These issues can especially promulgate in large-scale industries where efficiency loss due to quality errors and workforce retention are frequent occurrences. This makes robots necessary in building large-scale manufacturing capacities such as Tesla's Gigafactory for battery manufacturing, or Amazon's innovative warehouse management. However, the future goal of manufacturing is not merely achieving scale but manufacturing customised products at scale, in other words, 'flexibility in scale'. This is where robots checkmark all boxes, making their adoption inevitable.

From Smart Manufacturing to Smart Factories

With the emergence of open-source robotics libraries such as Robot Operating System (ROS), building customised robot software has become more accessible and cost-effective. These computer programs can be used to change the functioning of the robots as per requirement. 3D printing too has revolutionised composite manufacturing, especially with the breakthrough innovation of printing with continuous fibre, making composite manufacturing cheaper with shorter lead times. Adidas pioneered this technology through its speed factories, combining advanced robotics and 3D printing to create an automated, decentralised and flexible manufacturing process. Now with the emergence of 5G communications, the manufacturing industry is taking another leap forward from smart manufacturing to smart factories. A smart factory is the convergence of the physical and digital manufacturing world, where all different production parts can be connected via the IoT (Internet of Things) and managed using advanced machine learning techniques. For example, manufacturers can use sensors to monitor equipment in real-time and customise the output.

Robot Manufacturing in Asian Countries

The United States and Germany have led the robot manufacturing industry. Most industrial robots in Asian countries such as South Korea, Japan and China have been imported from the West. As the robot density in the manufacturing industries has increased at the fastest pace for South Korea, Japan and China, with 932, 390 and 246 robots per 10,000 employees, Asian countries have started innovating domestically to develop competitive and cost-effective robotics technology. However, the adoption of robotics in India remains significantly low than the global average of 126 robots per 10,000 employees in the manufacturing industry.

As per World Robotics Report, 2021, robot density in China increased by 53% over 2019/20, while robot density in India increased by 12% over the same period. In China, robots were barely prioritised in the 12th Five-Year Plan, scarcely noticeable, mainly appearing as a small initiative within the automated factory machinery. However, including industrial robots as a key priority in the 13th Five-Year Plan and 'Made in China 2025' initiative, China has made significant achievements by shifting its focus towards high-end and intelligent development. China follows the policy of 'Dual Circulation', in which the country has a lower import tax to foster domestic consumption while also investing in R&D to promote the development of industrial robots domestically. China plans to establish 3-5 industry zones for robotics and expand indigenous robot manufacturing, reducing reliance on imports. Also expanding the market for robots, China will develop robots to work on tasks across 52 nominated industries, ranging from traditional fields such as automotive construction to new areas such as health and medicine. South Korea's dominance in the robotics industry is the direct result of the reforms in the beginning of 2000. South Korea included the robotic industry under its "Top Ten Future Growth Power Industries" list in 2003. This was followed by Smart Robot Development and Popularisation Promotion Act 2008, which involved five years plans for robotics and included substantial R&D investments. Through R&D investments, South Korea followed a 'top-down' innovation system that fostered close collaboration between government, industry, and the academic community in nation-building.

Status of Robotics Industry in India

The adoption of robots in the manufacturing industry in India has been slow, with robots predominantly used by domestic subsidiaries of foreign multinational companies such as intelligent warehouses of Amazon and Walmart or assembly lines of automotive vehicles. However, the Indian manufacturing industry has witnessed an increased uptake in industrial robots owing to the labour shortage amidst the COVID-19 pandemic. Immigrant labourers migrated back to their home town, leading to an acute shortage of labour, especially those who had perfected these tasks after spending many years in that industry. This disruption in the production line awakened interest in industrial robots. Further, many emerging industries, such as battery manufacturing, smart warehousing and EV (Electric Vehicle) manufacturing will require industrial robots.

A critical factor that has prevented robotic adoption in India is the high costs associated with industrial robots. While India has built expertise in robotics software, with many Indian firms now also outsourcing these services to the West, Indian companies have to rely on expensive imported robots due to a lack of indigenously developed robots. Indian robotic firms have to import core and peripheral components, which significantly increase the cost of the robot. A typical robot can undergo thousands of hours of trials with various iterations of different prototypes. Though these prototypes can be designed digitally using software, Indian robotic companies have to rely on China to get these prototypes materialised and shipped to them. The delivery of such prototypes can take a few days to months, delaying the trial phase of robots. Even if firms can afford imported robots, they struggle to customise them for specific requirements and get prompt post-purchase maintenance services from foreign companies. With National Mission on Semiconductor in place, the Indian robotics industry is seeing growth as essential raw materials are expected to be available locally to manufacture robots. Indian robot manufacturers have also been focusing on sourcing alternate raw materials available locally and piloting various payment models, from offering credit to nominal rental services, making robotics services more affordable for Indian companies.

Robotics: Not Threat but Opportunity for Emerging Economies

This is evident from the closure of Adidas' speed factories in Germany, high-tech automated factories aimed at bringing manufacturing back to the West. Adidas Speed factories revolutionised manufacturing using 3D printing to eliminate manual work such as stitching and gluing. Using Adidas's sport science data, speed factories could customise shoes quickly. However, these factories could churn out much fewer shoes than Asian factories would. This led Adidas to shut down the speed factories in the West and move the same technology to Asia. Despite advancements in robotic technology, countries with economical labour will remain a favourable destination for manufacturing companies. It is also a testament to the fact that building technological prowess alone cannot help factories become efficient. Human workforce, ease of doing business and infrastructure will remain essential. While robotics may obsolete some jobs, it will also create a new era of jobs, demanding new skills and reiterating that the human workforce remains a key advantage. This is where India can leverage its advantage as an economic force and build prowess in Industry 4.0 technologies. In such a scenario, Industry 4.0 technologies, combined with our young population, can give us a crucial advantage over other economies.

Way Forward for Robotics in India

For India to achieve its USD 5 Trillion economy goal, the focus must be on bringing in the size and scale of manufacturing. The focus should not be just on making India self-reliant by meeting domestic demand but also on making India a significant exporter of various products to other countries. Industry 4.0 capabilities can help us achieve this dream with efficiency and sustainability. We have built remarkable software capabilities, and it's time now we do the same for hardware capabilities. The Government of India has become active in developing the robotics industry in the past few years. In 2020, the Government of India extended the outlay of Digital India to USD 447 Million to boost robotics, machine learning, artificial intelligence, cybersecurity, and big data. Defence Research and Development Organisation (DRDO), through its premier research centre, the Centre for Artificial Intelligence and Robotics, has helped in technology transfer to the Indian industries. Recently, the Department of Science, Government of India, provided a seed grant of USD 22 Million for an 'Artificial Intelligence and Robotics Technology Park'. This research park is built in a public-private collaborative manner and is a joint initiative by the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore and AI Foundry to create societal impact by bringing futuristic technology to traditional sectors such as agriculture, healthcare, education, etc.

While we have many ambitious programs in place to promote robotics, we need to form a National Mission on Robotics, on the likes of South Korea and China, that can unify the robotics industry of India, articulate the challenges of the sector as a whole, formulate policies, build strategic public-private synergies to foster robot-intensive manufacturing and promote indigenous robots. The academic scholarship on robotics research in India is currently somewhat cluttered and disparate from industry needs. This Mission should focus on bridging the gap between academia and industry to build technology that can be commercialised. Further, this Mission can also play a crucial role in the cross-sectoral applications of robotics technology, where technology developed by one industry or research institute could be smoothly transferred to other sectors. This is likely to induce the market demand for robotics in India, serving as a growth incentive for domestic robot manufacturers. In addition, tax benefits and incentive schemes such as 'product link incentives' should include conditions for technological upgradation for the industries to disburse benefits. Lastly, robots should not be seen as a threat to the human workforce. They can help us make workplaces safer while also bringing more enriching jobs to our youth who face professional stagnation on the pretext of performing repetitive tasks.

09. IMPORTANT INSTRUCTION FOR SKILL/TYPING TEST

A) Criteria for Calculation of Typing Speed and Error-

I. The Criteria for evaluation of typing speed & error is illustrated below as -

Note: 1 word = 5 key strokes, 1 error = 5 key strokes.

Net Speed (WPM) = [(Gross Strokes - Error Hits) / 5] / Total Test Time (Min).

Duration: 10 min.

Gross Strokes = Total Strokes Typed in 10 Min. e.g. 2000.

Words Typed = (2000/5) = 400.

Gross Speed = 400/10 = 40 WPM.

II. Criteria for Calculation of Error

Mistakes / Error Strokes = 250.

Error Words = 250/5 = 50.

Net Errors = 50/10 = 5 WPM.

Net Speed = 40 - 5 = 35 WPM.

B) Percentage of Error allowed -

i. Relaxation of 5% error for UR Category.

ii. Relaxation of 7% error for other Categories.

Chunking

The famous memory research paper "The Magical Number Seven, Plus or Minus Two" states that an average adult human being can only hold about 7 items at a time in short-term memory. Hence, grouping related items into larger chunks can help them remember more for the short term (and for the long term ultimately).

For example, if you have to study 'Modern History' for an exam, you could break it down into the following chunks:

- India in 1750 - Decline of the Mughal Empire, rule of later Mughals, and emergence of successor states
- The British expansion in India - East India Company, Presidencies, Governors-General, and battles
- The changes introduced by the British in India
- Popular uprisings and revolts against the British
- Socio-religious movements in India
- India's struggle for independence: The Indian freedom movement

Clubbing information like this helps in easier memorization and faster recall during exams.

Imagery

This technique involves forming mental images of words or ideas to remember them better. For example, if you need to memorize the periodic table of elements, you can create an image in your mind of a table with each element labelled with its symbol and atomic number.

Some of the tricks to create more memorable images to remember better are:

- Link the image with something funny or silly for easier recall. For example, if you need to remember that nitrogen has the atomic number 7, imagine a nitpicking monkey wearing a number 7 jersey.
- Use vivid and colourful images that stand out in your memory. For example, you are more likely to remember the name of SAARC countries if you imagine a brightly coloured map of South Asia with each of the countries marked in different colours.
- Create an imaginary scene rather than just a single object. For example, imagine a room full of historical personalities discussing their ideologies instead of trying to memorize their names and affiliations.

Visualization

This technique involves using visual images to help you remember facts and figures. For example, if you need to remember the capitals of different countries, you can create an image in your mind of a map with each country labelled with its capital.

But visualization is more than using imagery. You can visualize a whole scene or drama involving the facts or figures you need to memorize. For example, if you need to remember all the movements of Mahatma Gandhi and the events associated with them, imagine a scene where he is actively doing something related to that movement and how events are unfolding. The more vivid and realistic your visualization is, the easier it will be for you to remember what you need to. You can 'feel' smells, sounds, tastes, emotional states, and physical sensations when you visualize. This will help to strengthen your memory and recall.

Spaced Repetition

This technique involves studying the same material multiple times at regular intervals over a period of time. This method of studying has been proven to be the most effective way to remember information for a long period.

Experts recommend that at the beginning of the learning process, the intervals of revisiting a topic should be shorter (for example, one hour, four hours or one day). Once the student feels that the topic or concept is fully understood, they can systematically increase it to four days, one week and two weeks. The idea is that one should review the material before they forget it - to cement it in their long-term memory.

You can either use the offline 'Box' method or an online or mobile spaced repetition app to review what you need to study at the designated intervals.

In the 'Box' method, you need to make three boxes:

- When you study a new topic, create flashcards for it and place them in the first box. Review them within 24 hours.
- Once you recall what's written on the flashcard correctly, place it in the second box which contains flashcards that you need to review within a week.
- If you still recall the material on your flashcard correctly after a week, place it in the third box which contains flashcards that you need to review within a fortnight.

If you can't recall some material, place related flashcards in the first box once again.

This is a very effective way of remembering and retaining information.

Elaborative Rehearsal

This technique involves actively engaging with the material by asking yourself questions about it and making connections between related concepts. For example, if you are learning about different types of economic systems, you can ask yourself questions such as "What are the similarities and differences between a mixed economy and a command economy?"

This is a very effective memory strategy for the in-depth processing of the material. Elaborative rehearsal helps you to create meaningful links between related concepts and understand them in greater detail. As you link new information with what you already know, you develop your critical thinking and analytical reasoning abilities which are some of the key skills you need to ace competitive exams. This memory technique is especially effective for learning complex topics that have many interrelated elements.

Acronyms

This technique involves creating an acronym to help you remember a series of facts or figures. For example, if you need to remember the six measuring tools of trigonometry (sine, cosine, tangent, cotangent, secant and cosecant), you can create an acronym such as "SCTCSC".

Those who are preparing for IBPS Recruitment Exams, UGC NET or CSIR NET, IIT JAM, SSC, and RRB exams will need to learn a lot of standard abbreviations, such as:

- ARDR - Agricultural and Rural Debt Relief
- ASEAN - Association of South-East Asian Nations
- BCSBI - Banking Codes and Standards Board of India
- BIFR - Board of Industrial and Financial Reconstruction and more.

To learn them, you can write them several times or create flashcards that can be used for self-testing or reviewing the material from time to time.

Memory Palace

This technique involves creating a mental image or map of a place that you are familiar with, such as your house or school. You then place the information that you need to remember within the map to recall it more easily.

A candidate preparing for the CA exam, for example, can place the key concepts related to accounting such as depreciation and accounts receivable in one room of their memory palace, while the information related to auditing such as verification and testing can be placed in another room. In this way, you create a series of mental connections between facts or figures that are easier to remember.

Memory palaces can be also used for memorizing quotes, formulas and equations.

When you use this technique, you need to think like an architect. You should create an elaborate mental image that contains as much detail as possible. You can organize the material into categories such as colours, shapes or stories to make it easier to remember.

Memory palaces are especially useful for remembering detailed information that needs to be recalled in a specific order. They can help you ace those competitive exams which require long-term retention of knowledge.

Once you have created your memory palace, practice using it on a regular basis to strengthen the association between the material and the mental image. This will help you recall information more quickly and accurately when it comes time for your exam.

Rhymes, Songs or Parodies

When you start feeling drowsy, overwhelmed or bored while studying, this technique can be a great way to re-energize your study session. To use it effectively, you need to create a song, poem or parody that incorporates the facts and figures that you are trying to learn.

When preparing for an exam such as SBI PO or similar banking exams, you can use this technique to remember the names of the various banking committees and their chairpersons. For example:

- RBI - Shri Shaktikanta Das
- FSDC - Nirmala Sitharaman
- SEBI - Madhabi Puri Buch

You can put these words to the music of your favourite jingle or song, and keep on singing them until you learn them. You may even choreograph dance moves (a foot tap or a shake of the head) to the words to make them even more memorable. During the exam, if you are forgetting a certain answer, it will be easier for you to recall it by doing the related move.

Using All Your Senses

This technique involves using all five senses (sight, sound, touch, smell and taste) to help you remember information. For example, if you are studying a topic such as human anatomy, you can create vivid mental images of each organ and its functions and recall them by associating them with particular smells or tastes.

Research proves that using incense sticks or sniffing a certain scent while studying can help you remember information more easily. Some students prefer to listen to music while studying. You might try eating a different flavour for each set of information or rubbing your hands on a specific texture while learning a specific type of information.

When you use different senses to learn, it helps to create more powerful associations between what you are learning and the information itself. This is why writing information while repeating it loudly and drawing diagrams are considered effective ways to memorize something - because you exercise all your senses at once.

Overall, these memory techniques can help you to better prepare for your competitive exams and improve your understanding of the material. It is important to practice using them regularly to maximise their effectiveness.

These days, you can find many mnemonics online for a variety of topics. A little bit of research can go a long way in making your study sessions more effective and enjoyable. But remember, coming up with your own acronyms, parodies or mnemonic devices can be even more effective as they will be tailored to your own learning style and preferences.

Don't be afraid to get creative in your study sessions, it might just hold the key to a better score. Good luck!

ISSUE DATED

3 - 9 December 2022

Question: December 3rd is observed as International Day of Persons with Disabilities. The theme this year is "Transformative solutions for inclusive development: the role of innovation in fuelling an accessible and equitable world." What simple innovations/changes in our daily lives do you think can make our society more accessible for Divyangjans?

FIZA SHEES

UTTAR PRADESH

Every year the International Day of Persons with Disabilities is observed on 3rd December to address the political, economic and social discrepancies faced by Divyangjans at every strata of society and to uphold the rights and welfare.

Government initiatives like the Vocational Rehabilitation Centres for the Specially Challenged have made the world even more equitable and accessible for all. Other technological solutions and interventions that can contribute immensely towards ensuring accessibility to all include:

- Public awareness about technological innovations like text to speech, etc.
- Computer and other systems with audio and visual aid.
- Audio books can be created for their maximum utilization.
- Often it gets difficult for the disabled to access the public places due to small barriers such as narrow entry, crowded checkout areas, etc. Removing them can be expensive, however, an additional staff to escort them can be a great move.
- Making necessary slopes and ramps for the wheelchair bound at all public places and all healthcare facilities including at a dentist and eye specialist can make all these places accessible.
- Making air travel universally accessible; we need more sign interpreters at airports to assist the hearing impaired persons in avoiding getting into hassles.

We have seen how Indian athletes' stellar performance at the Paralympics helped the country win medals and praises. It is our duty to salute the unshakable spirit of all differently-abled citizens and pledge our inclusive initiatives to remove barriers and inequalities so that they realise their true potential.
